Ventilation in Railroad Cars Some of the cars recently constructed on, the Memphis and Charleston railroad are furnished with nest ventilators that are fastened to the sides of the car below the windows. They are made of metal, and resemble a small oblong box with a lid about ten inches in length by three or our inches in width. On opening the lid a disphragm of fine wire-gauss may be seen. This is inserted transversely so as to entirely cover the sperture leading to the atmosphers. When a passenger wish-es for fresh sir, he opens the iid of the ventilator at the side of his sest, and a current is admitted—free, however, irom dust and sparks; these being prevented from entering by the wire-gauze dis-phragm. Other advantages obtained by them are, that the passengers are not annoyed by draughte, and not liable to take id, as is the case with open windows, The device is a good one. Church This Week-Proceedings Of Both Days.

The Sunday-school Institute held with the First Baptist church in this city, was designed to give information in regard to the best methods of conducting Sundayschools, embracing not only the best methods of teaching, but the proper use of books, maps, blackboards, singling and everything employed to furnish interest and instruction to the children. Teaching is an art little studied by the great majority of people. Many of the teachers in our day schools and professors in colleges are profoundly ignorant of this aft. The design of the institute will be seen to cover a wide field. Every question of interest comes within its range, and many of these questions have been discussed with an ability and a practical good sense were its leaders understood their work and comprehended the value of the best methods of doing it. Sundayschools may be very dull and useless things or very profitable and interesting ones, according to the manner in which they are conducted, the ends sought to be attained and the earnestness of those who engage in them. The topics of the first day—a report of which we not space to publish—were: First—how to establish and sustain Sunday-schools; second—the requisites for an efficier Sunday school; third—the ends to be a

Sunday school; third—the ends to be attained by a successful teacher and the preparations which are needed.

These exercises were interspersed with some most delightful singing, led by Mr. Fish. There is a melody and a soul in the singing of Mr. Fish rarely equalled, and those who heard him sing "Jesus of Nazereth passeth by" will not soon forget it.

While congratulating our Baptist friends upon it, we express the desire that it may not be long before another will be held in this city, so that many of our religious people who have not understood its real value or who have been detained by business from enjoying the meeting may be offered another opportunity to hear discussions on Sunday-school subjects. The Rev. Drs. Randolph, Landrum, Flechenor, and Rev. Mr. Fish, who are the principal speakers, are thoroughly imbued with the importance of the Sunday-school work, and entertain large and his great enterprise. this great enterprise.

He stated that in the former slave States there are nearly 12,000 Baptist churches, and nearly one million of church members. These, when properly organized and earnestly engaged; ingthe Sunday-school work, would be a power to move the whole land. To effect this organization was the work now engaging the attention of the Sunday-school board of the Southern Baptist convention, located in Mr. Fish made one of his character istic, entertaining speeches, in which he siluded to his experience as a politician before he became a preacher, and the ef-fect of organization in the Harrison campaign, which was his last.

The morning exercises were interspersed with some delightful singing.

The afternoon was devoted to the considerations and the second s eration of the best mode of conducting a Sunday-school, and the speeches were full of suggestions to superintendents and teachers. After hearing these addresses

t seemed to be an easy thing to run Sunday-school.
One noticeable feature of the institute was the "question box." Teachers and others are encouraged to write questions which are collected and carried to Mr. Fish, the presiding officer, who under-takes to answer them. He answered various questions last night in an intering manner, and gave an entertaining ex-ercise on the blackboard. Dr. Randolph delivered a fine address on class-teaching.

CARL GUTHERE, the Memphis artist, not only his many friends in this city, but our people generally, will be glad to learn, is distinguishing himself in the art achool at Rome of which he is a pupil. A small photograph of one of his most research works proves that he is possessed of all the finer gifts of imagination so necessary to a complete realization of his drawn as an artist. This photograph of D. Rattigan sent up a patition asking gels of promise, blowing from their trumpets assurances of gladness, while the little happy hours are dancing in front, the days and months tripping it in equal measure on both sides. It is altogether a beautiful conception, one that augurs well for the future of a gentleman who, besides that he is personally ambitious, is desirous of reflecting credit upon the city of his "home and heart."
